Bull Head Decorative Door Sculpture

The Bull Head Decorative Door Sculpture is a unique design work that brings together power and originality at the entrance of your business. The split bull head figure is integrated into a sliding automatic door system, creating a dramatic welcoming moment where the sculpture splits in two as the door opens. It offers a strong corporate identity and a memorable brand experience for meat product businesses, butchers, and premium food stores.

Features of the Sculpture

The bull head sculpture, produced from high-quality fiberglass material, offers a sleek and commanding appearance with matte black and anthracite tone coating options. The horn structure, fur texture, nose, and forehead details have been masterfully modeled with faithful anatomical accuracy. Produced in full compatibility with sliding automatic door systems, the sculpture is custom-sized and mounted according to the door opening mechanism. With its structure resistant to outdoor conditions and heavy use, it can be displayed without issue for many years.

Areas of Use

The Bull Head Decorative Door Sculpture is a powerful brand symbol for butchers, meat restaurants, premium meat and delicatessen stores, and agricultural and livestock companies. While giving your business entrance a distinctive character, it leaves a lasting first impression on customers. Offering both a functional and artistic solution with its automatic door system integration, this sculpture is available for project-based production with custom size and coating color options.
