

Martyr Statue

A martyr statue is a special memorial work created to preserve the memory of heroes who gave their lives for their homeland for future generations. The piece shown here was custom designed in memory of Eren Bulbul, a young student who was martyred in a brutal attack in Macka, Trabzon. Thanks to its bronze finish and realistic craftsmanship, this statue is not just a work of art but also an important part of collective memory. It can be displayed in many locations, from school gardens to public squares and government buildings.

The Meaning and Importance of a Martyr Statue

A martyr statue is not merely a physical figure, but a tangible representation of courage, sacrifice, and love for one's homeland. In the case of the Eren Bulbul statue, the posture, gaze, and clothing of a young hero who lost his life are crafted down to the finest detail. The inscription on the base, which reads "İyi ki Varsın Eren" (We Are Grateful You Existed, Eren), creates an emotional connection while conveying a meaningful message to visitors. Statues like this ensure that martyrs are remembered not only by name, but through their character and presence as well.

Custom Martyr Statues Can Also Be Made

Our workshop produces custom statues in memory of other martyrs as well, not just Eren Bulbul, based on customer requests. Fully realistic designs are created using reference photographs, clothing details, and personal features. Separate concept designs can be prepared for soldiers, police officers, teachers, or civilian martyrs. Each project is shaped according to the requests of the family or institution, and work proceeds based on approved models. This ensures that every statue becomes a unique piece carrying its own story.

Where Martyr Statues Can Be Displayed

Martyr statues can be displayed in many different locations such as school gardens, municipal squares, police station entrances, military units, martyrs' memorials, museums, and public buildings. The materials used are specifically chosen so the statue remains intact outdoors for many years without deterioration. It can also be permanently placed at commemoration ceremonies, anniversary events, and the gardens of educational institutions. With granite or marble base options, the statue adds both aesthetic and meaningful value to its location.

Long-Lasting Production with Fiberglass Material

These statues are produced from fiberglass, a material known for being lightweight yet durable. Fiberglass is a preferred material in memorial statue production because of its high resistance to outdoor weather conditions, ease of transport, and ability to retain its color for many years without fading. Thanks to the special bronze-effect painting technique applied on top, the statue takes on the appearance of real metal. This production method offers a cost advantage while also making it easier to transport large-scale statues.

Realistic Proportions and Detailed Craftsmanship

These statues are generally produced at 1:1 scale, meaning true human size. This gives visitors the feeling of standing face to face with a real person when they see the statue. Facial features, hair details, clothing wrinkles, and posture are meticulously modeled based on reference photographs. Upon request, production can also be done at different sizes, such as half-body or enlarged monumental scales. Before each project, an approval process is carried out using a design model, ensuring the final result fully meets expectations.

Base and Inscription Options

The base that completes the statue is custom made from granite or marble to specific dimensions. The martyr's name, birth and martyrdom dates, or a meaningful phrase can be inscribed on the base in gold or other color options. As seen in the piece pictured, emotional phrases such as "İyi ki Varsın Eren" strengthen the message of the statue. The size of the base and the font of the inscription are custom shaped according to customer requests for each project.

Order and Production Process

Before placing an order for a martyr statue, reference photographs and personal details are requested. A digital design model is then prepared by the design team and submitted for approval. Once approved, production begins, and the statue is completed and installed at the requested address within the specified delivery time. Throughout the entire process, close communication is maintained with the family or institution to ensure the final result fully meets expectations in both meaning and aesthetics. If you have such a request, please let us know through the order form below.
