Olive Sculpture

The olive, a symbol of a thousands-of-years-old civilization and a gift of the soil and the sun, has now been translated into the language of art. With its matte black body and bronze-toned leaves, this olive sculpture is not merely a decorative object but a three-dimensional expression of a deeply rooted culture and abundance. Reflecting the simplicity and nobility of the olive simultaneously, this artwork adds meaning to every space it inhabits and whispers a profound story.

Olive Sculpture: Nature's Trace in Every Detail

This olive sculpture seen in the photograph has been produced in two different sizes, both of which reflect the true texture of nature with great mastery. The matte and smooth black body of the olive, the bronze-effect surface of the branch, and the details worked down to the veins of the leaves lend the artwork an almost organic realism. The display of two compositions — one large and one small — side by side demonstrates how striking results the play of scale can produce. When the symbolism of the olive branch as a sign of peace and abundance is considered, the meaning this artwork carries goes far beyond aesthetics alone.

Fiberglass Material: Lightweight, Durable, and Long-Lasting

These olive sculptures are manufactured using fiberglass material. Fiberglass is among the most preferred materials in the field of sculpting due to its lightweight nature, high durability, and ability to preserve its form integrity for many years. When used outdoors, it shows superior resistance against rain, frost, UV rays, and heat. Indoors, it maintains its original appearance unaffected by humidity or temperature changes. The special matte black and bronze-effect paints applied to the surface give the artwork a realistic and elegant appearance while remaining fade-resistant for many years.

Where Can It Be Used?

The olive sculpture is an extremely suitable decorative and identity object for the showrooms of olive oil producers, gourmet restaurants, hotels, boutique stores, agricultural museums, municipal squares, and private gardens. It serves as a powerful visual element reflecting corporate identity, especially for companies in the olive production sector. It also creates an eye-catching focal point at fairs and exhibition areas. Placed at the entrance of your office or in a corner of your garden, this sculpture is one of the most silent yet powerful ways to convey the essence of your business to your visitors.

Custom Order Production in Any Desired Size

Both olive sculptures in the photograph were produced entirely upon custom order. In our studio, production is carried out in all sizes, ranging from tabletop decorations to monumental sculptures of square scale. All details such as color tone, surface effect, number of leaves, and number of olives are shaped according to the customer's preferences. It is also possible to design a single olive, a double group, or a larger composition. Every order is handled from scratch, and one-on-one communication is established with the customer to achieve the best possible result.

A Powerful Symbol for Corporate Identity

The olive has been a symbol of peace, abundance, and health in the Mediterranean geography for centuries. Used as a corporate sculpture with this deep-rooted symbolic weight, the olive figure conveys a profound message that aligns with your brand's values. For olive oil factories, organic product stores, agricultural companies, and gastronomy businesses, this sculpture goes far beyond ordinary decoration and becomes a tool of corporate expression. Designs integrated with your logo can also be prepared upon request. Though not widely known, there are also large olive groves and olive factories in Nicea.

How Does the Order Process Work?

To order an olive sculpture, all you need to do is get in touch with our studio. Once the area where the sculpture will be used, the desired size, and any special design requests are shared, our team will present you with a preliminary design and price quote. The production process begins following approval; the customer is informed at every stage, and revisions are made if necessary. Installation support is also provided at delivery. You imagine it — we bring it to life down to the finest detail.
